KING CHARLES CHECKS PLOT AGAINST HIM

Portugal's Ruler Arrests Army Officers on Charge of Conspiracy and Has Secret Service Men Gathering Evidence Against Others in Movement.

RENEWAL OF ATTEMPT TO OVERTHROW DYNASTY.

Disaffection Extends to Several Regiments, and More Suspects Are Likely to Be Taken Into Custody—Cashiered Officers Behind the Movement.

BERLIN, July 17.—A despatch to the Cologne Gazette from Lisbon says that a number of officers of the Fifth Portuguese Infantry have been arrested on the charge of conspiring against King Charles. They will be tried by court martial.

Suspicion of a widespread conspiracy against the dynasty have been entertained for some time. The instigators being officers who were cashiered some time ago. Other regiments are said to be affected.

Exceptional efforts are being made to stamp out the plot, as with Servia's tragedy in view, the conspirators may go to extreme lengths. Secret officers of the Government are now circulating in army circles and additional arrests are expected.

King Charles has had to deal with other movements against him in the army similar to that reported to-day. In 1902 there were well-defined reports of a conspiracy against Portugal's monarch and a regency was talked of. Vigorous steps were taken to suppress the plotters, and while there were no public prosecutions it was said that several officials felt the wrath of the King. Among these were the cashiered army officers alluded to above.

Still earlier in the history of the reported difficulties of the reigning dynasty of Portugal were reports of alleged differences of opinion between King Charles and Queen Marie Amelie in regard to the attitude of the King on the clerical question.

These so-called differences related to the treatment of religious congregations. The King's attitude in the matter was said to be antagonistic to the congregations, and for a time it was rumored that he intended to go on a journey. This did not prove true, however.

The Marquis de Pombal resigned the post of grand master of the court ceremonies in consequence of a decree of the King, which was taken as unfavorable to the congregation.

Considerable attention was attracted to the affairs of the royal house of Portugal by the visit of King Charles to England in the winter of last year, and his reception at Windsor Castle, together with the return visit of King Edward to Portugal last April.

King Edward was received with much ceremony by the nobility of Portugal, headed by the King, and the visit passed off most successfully.

ABNER M'KINLEY NOT PARALYZED.

Story of Illness of Late President's Brother Is Denied at His Office.

The report that Abner McKinley, brother of the late President McKinley, had suffered a stroke of paralysis at his home at Somerset, Pa., was denied at Mr. McKinley's office, No. 52 Broadway, to-day.

"There is absolutely no truth in the statement," declared one of the clerks. "The office was called up on the long-distance telephone a short time ago by one of the members of Mr. McKinley's family, who wished us to deny the story. It is true that he was not feeling well when he left the office last week for his summer home, but he is much better and is going around to-day as usual."

Brig.-Gen. S. S. Sumner to be Major-General, Vice Major-General Davis, to be retired July 26.

Brig.-Gen. Leonard H. Wood to be Major-General, Vice Gen. Young, to be promoted.

CHILD CHOKED TO DEATH AND BODY HIDDEN

Its Skeleton, with a Piece of Tape Knotted Tightly Around the Neck, Found To-Day Under Kitchen Floor at No. 67 West Ninety-third Street.

SMALL BODY WRAPPED IN MADRAS OUTING SHIRT.

The House in Which It Was Found Has Been Vacant Since January, but the Police Are Now Looking Up the Former Tenants.

The skeleton of a child with a piece of tape knotted tightly around the neck was found to-day under the kitchen floor of the vacant house at No. 67 West Ninety-third street. The police of the West One Hundredth street station are tracing former tenants of the house in the hope of finding how the skeleton came to be there. Until expert examination is made it will be impossible to tell how long since the little body was placed underneath the floor.

The house is a three-story and basement structure of red sandstone and brick, one of a row of six. It was bought a short time ago by Charles J. Rittenberg, of No. 11 Broadway. He employed carpenters and plumbers to renovate the structure.

How Skeleton Was Found.

Frank Davis, a carpenter, of No. 2758 Eighth avenue, was at work in the kitchen to-day taking out the floor under the sink to allow the plumbers to put in new pipes. He came across what appeared to be a package wrapped in a worn white madras outing shirt. Davis pulled the parcel out and unwrapped it. The skeleton fell on the floor. The body was very little flesh on the bones and the manner of death was not apparent, although the tape around the throat would seem to indicate that the little one was choked to death.

This tape is about an eighth of an inch wide of the sort used by women for drawing strings. It was wound time and again around the throat, each wrap being secured by a knot at the back.

Examination shows that it would have been possible for the body to be placed where it was found either by pulling up boards in the floor of the kitchen or removing boards in the ceiling of the cellar directly underneath.

The house has been vacant since early last January. For a time previous to that it had been occupied by a Mrs. Odyke as a furnished room establishment.

Forced Out by Coal famine.

Mrs. Odyke was unable to secure sufficient coal to warm the house and her roomers left. Finally she closed the place, moved her furniture further downtown and dropped out of sight with her son, a boy.

Before Mrs. Odyke moved into the house it had been vacant a long time after having been vacated by the family of a man named Rothstein, who is in the cotton goods business.

It does not follow that the child was placed under the floor by some one who lived in the house. Access to it from the rear was easy. Any one wishing to dispose of the body could have secured entrance and accomplished the purpose without being detected.

Davis, after his ghastly discovery, went out and called Policeman Snyder, who placed the body back in the position it occupied when Davis first saw it. Coroner Scholer was called and made a superficial examination of the corpse. He could not tell how long the child had been dead. He estimated its age to have been from one year to one year and six or seven months.

Mr. Rothstein lives now at Seventy-ninth street and Amsterdam avenue. He moved out of the Ninety-third street house over a year ago.

"I lived in the house for two years," said Mr. Rothstein this afternoon. "Just before I moved in, the previous tenant had complained of the plumbing and some repairs were made. We were never troubled until about a year ago, when I thought that the plumbing was out of shape. The landlord said that rather than tear up the house he would reduce the rent, but I did not care to stay. It is my opinion that the skeleton was under the floor before I moved there and that the presence of the child gave rise to the complaint of the tenant who preceded me."

She was seen this afternoon at her home, No. 102 West Eighty-fourth street. She was astounded at the information about the skeleton. It must have been placed there long before she went into the house in her opinion. She was in and out of the kitchen every day during her occupancy of the house and it would have been impossible for any one to have placed the dead child under the floor without detection in that time.

BRIGHTON BEACH, N. Y., July 17.—This being Friday it was an off one at Brighton so far as stakes were concerned, but evidently the people care nothing for stakes, judging from the crowd that put in an appearance. There were just as many in attendance as yesterday, when one of the most attractive cards of the meeting was furnished. There are always large fields and good betting at Brighton, and this suits the crowd to a nicety. Big fields mean long shots, and this is what Brighton patrons like.

The card to-day in the absence of stakes had a handicap at a mile and a furlong which promised a rattling good race. There was also a good handicap for the two-year-olds. The weather was clear and track fast.

WARRANT FOR RACE TRACK DETECTIVE.

Lawyer Stenhardt Enters a New Field in His War Against the Track Owners.

Benjamin Stenhardt, who is waging war on the race track attaches, secured a warrant from Justice Holbrook in the Court of Special Sessions this afternoon for the arrest of a Pinkerton detective, now employed at the Brighton race track. The man is charged with oppression.

Mr. Stenhardt said that during the Morris Park meeting, some weeks ago, one of the hangers-on about the track was arrested by the Pinkerton detectives and locked up in the temporary jail that the detectives have at the track. The warrant, he said, would give the Pinkerton man a dose of his own medicine.

ISISH LAND BILL GOES RIGHT AHEAD.

Now Up to Its Third Reading, When It Will Be Passed to the House of Lords.

LONDON, July 17.—The report stage of the Irish Land Bill was completed in the House of Commons this afternoon, after a number of technical amendments. In fulfillment of Irish Secretary Wyndham's promises while the bill was in committee, the measure will pass its third reading Tuesday, and will then be sent to the House of Lords, where no serious difficulties are anticipated.

(Special to The Evening World.)

EXPOSITION PARK, PITTSBURG, July 17.—It was a hard proposition that confronted Lute Taylor this afternoon. Even were he able to talk he would have had little to say. The unbearable gloating of Pittsburgh rooters over the wholesale slaughter yesterday caused all the Giants to feel blue and uncommunicative. A total of thirty-five bases and eighteen hits, plentifully sprinkled with home runs, triples and doubles, was enough to give any one a bad taste.

For the third time Barney Dreyfuss and John T. Brush resped a harvest from the national game, for New York has proved the greatest drawing card of the season here. Four thousand rooters, with very few deadheads, piled into the circus to-day, scattering greenbacks, gold and silver for the pockets of those two shrewd magnates. There was plenty of money betting too, but New York backers wanted long odds this time, as nearly $10,000 changed hands yesterday.

First Inning.

The third contest began in pretty weather, and, for a wonder, the ground was bathed in sunshine. Umpire Bob Emslie was in his best voice, and so were all the leather-lunged rooters. As Pittsburgh looked for an easy victory, the bleachers slumbered, and when George Browne fanned at three wide ones Roaring the Kennedy, but a feeble cheer. It was an auspicious beginning, and Van could not help things, popping a baby to Ritchey. Kennedy seemed to have the Giants on the run, and when Dan McGann breezed three times Bill got a hand. No runs.

Taylor was nervous when he went in the box, but after he had caught Beaumont's little bounce it gave him confidence. Sebring swung hard and grounded, but Gilbert was there and the mute faced Wagner with a smile. The Flying Dutchman had a smile, too, as he clipped off a single over second. Hans lived but a moment, though. Browne gobbling a hoist from Bransfield. No runs.

Second Inning.

Some fan on the upper grand stand who has been gazing Mertes every time he comes to bat, was a little bit of a talker, getting an awful roaring. This riled Sam, and he retaliated with a third bagger. Beaumont saw who he had thrown Sam and Ritchey at third and was knocked down with some sore ribs. Dunn's hoist to McGann was good as a base hit, scoring Sam. Babb succeeded in starting something, passing one that Ritchey could not get in time. Sebring bled Wagner, made good his reputation with a fine single, scoring Babb. Dummy fanned. Two runs.

Leach burned Dunn's fingers with a one that went for a hit. Warner caught Leach a mile napping, but Emslie was quick. Sebring swung under it and that champion also poked Mertes a high poke. No runs.

Babb jumped in the next play, grabbing Wagner's grass-cutter, and giving Bransfield the rinky dink. Leach drove a terrific liner off, but Sebring galloped to the bush. No runs.

Fourth Inning.

Again Jack Dunn hoisted a long fly that Kruger easily napped. Babb was the killing victim to Kennedy's twist, fanning at two very broad ones. Gilbert had the good eye and trotted, but he escaped on the steal. No runs.

Ritchey rapped to Babb, who juggled, but Sebring fled to Van. Two runs.

Fifth Inning.

Warner died on a rap to Bransfield. Taylor bunted on the right line and McGann took care of it lone handed. Babb grabbed Beaumont's foul fly, Sebring sauntered, Wagner singled to second. Bransfield struck out. Leach fled to Babb. No runs.

Sixth Inning.

Van started off with a nice single to right. McGann followed with a bunt. Leach Kennedy could not reach. Mertes sacrificed and advanced Van and McGann. Dunn clipped to Leach, who threw to Smith, catching Van. At this point Babb took a hand, smashing a double to left, while McGann and Dunn trotted home. Gilbert fled to Ritchey. Two runs.

Seventh Inning.

Warner opened with a crash that hit right field fence, giving Jack two cushions. Taylor bunted and nearly hit it, but Warner reached third. Bransfield fumbled and then got Sebring at first home, being hit with the ball on Leach's throw. Browne took third on Van's sacrifice. McGann fled to right. One run.

Kennedy was now called on to save the game, and he rolled with a triple to centre. Beaumont grounded to McGann and Babb made a rattling stop. Van threw to Leach, who threw to Smith, catching Van. A triple that scored Kennedy. Babb's throw Bransfield out. One run.

LEO'S CONDITION GRAVE, BUT HAS A RESTFUL DAY

The Pope Continues to Surprise His Physicians, His General Condition Being a Little Less Depressed, and Latest Bulletin Confirms the Theory that He May Live for Several Days.

PATIENT PREFERS TO SIT UP IN THE BED OF DEATH.

The Liquid in the Pleura Does Not Continue to Rise and No Further Operation Will Be Performed Unless One Should Become Necessary to Render the Pontiff's Agony Less Acute.

LATEST BULLETIN—ROME, July 17—8 P. M.—The following bulletin has just been issued:

The day has been passed calmly enough. The august patient had intervals of rest and his general condition is a little less depressed. Pulsation, 88; respiration, which is less superficial, 32; temperature, 36.6 centigrade. LAPPONI, MAZZONI.

This bulletin sustains the opinion expressed by physicians to-day that the Pope would live for several days.

The condition of the Pope has not changed materially since morning. The liquid in the pleura has not continued to rise and the doctors have decided to postpone the contemplated operation.

Complete tranquillity prevails in the neighborhood of the Vatican. That the doctors did not fear immediate danger was indicated by this bulletin issued at 9.30 to-day:

His Holiness had during the night some hours of sleep, together with short periods of slight excitement. The level of the pleuric liquid is maintained within the limits already noted without seriously troubling the Pontiff. The personal condition of the august patient presents no noteworthy change. His pulsation is 88, respiration 30, and temperature 36.5 centigrade. (Signed) LAPPONI, MAZZONI.

At 4.10 P. M. the Pope received Mgr. Pifferi, his confessor, and then had a short sleep. No change in the Pontiff's condition is apparent.

HE IS A RESTLESS PATIENT.

During the night, as well as throughout this morning, the Pope continued calmer and his breathing was better. While he does not want any one constantly in the room, the Pontiff rings frequently for trivial causes, thus showing beyond doubt his desire for companionship.

He takes very frequently sips of meat broth, alternated with half-spoonfuls of chicken gelatine.

When asleep the Pontiff appears to be dead. His cheeks are sunken, his eyes are hollow and his jaws are exceptionally prominent, the skin being tightly drawn over the bones. When awake the Pope usually appears to retain life only in his brilliant black eyes, though he recovered the lucidity of his mind this morning and gave fresh proof of his wonderful memory, saying: "To-day is the fete of St. Leo. I have never failed to assist at mass since, when almost a boy, I came to Rome to participate in the jubilee of Leo XII. I wish to hear mass to-day."

MASS BESIDE THE SICK-ROOM.

The Pontiff's desire was immediately gratified by Mgr. Marzolini celebrating mass, as he did yesterday, in the chapel adjoining the sick-room.

After the visit of the doctors the Pope said he could not stay in bed, as it made him restless. His limbs were uncomfortable and he felt pains all over his body. Therefore he wished to go back to his armchair. No opposition was made.

though, Ritchey was allowed a hit. Taylor bunted on the right line and McGann took care of it lone handed. Babb grabbed Beaumont's foul fly, Sebring sauntered, Wagner singled to second. Bransfield struck out. Leach fled to Babb. No runs.

Fifth Inning.

Warner died on a rap to Bransfield. Taylor bunted on the right line and McGann took care of it lone handed. Babb grabbed Beaumont's foul fly, Sebring sauntered, Wagner singled to second. Bransfield struck out. Leach fled to Babb. No runs.

Sixth Inning.

Van started off with a nice single to right. McGann followed with a bunt. Leach Kennedy could not reach. Mertes sacrificed and advanced Van and McGann. Dunn clipped to Leach, who threw to Smith, catching Van. At this point Babb took a hand, smashing a double to left, while McGann and Dunn trotted home. Gilbert fled to Ritchey. Two runs.
